LILIES

CANBY ORE.

U.S.A.

Graduate School of Horticulture for Women, Ambler, Pa.

SO MANY of my customers have written, "I wish I might see your fields of lilies," and so, this year, since you cannot come to Oregon, I'm sending them to you on the frontispiece of my price list. I'm sorry I cannot send you the coloring, nor the fragrance, nor even all my fields of lilies, but don't you suppose if I will try to give you a word picture, row upon row, you could SEE the coloring and INHALE the fragrance of the various lilies, even though it might be in imagination?

Far to the right where the photographer was unable to catch them, are five rows three hundred feet long of Oregon's dainty little white bell-shaped Mt. Hood Lily, which changes to pink and wine color with age. The fragrance, though soft, is very sweet. I grew them from seed and they bloomed this year.

The next couple of rows are Columbianum—a little Turkscap, yellow with black spots. Then comes a few rows of the little blue Grape Hyacinth.

Next to the Grape Hyacinths, I planted a mixture of seedling Umbellatum lilies and this spring they were my chief source of bouquets and gifts, such a variety of colors and size of flowers and length of stem! I didn't list these, but if you would like to have some of them, I will sell them to you, bed run, 50 for $8.00, providing you will pay transportation. Ask for the "Mixture Umbellatums".

In the row next to the Umbellatum mixture, are some Henryi, which are yet to bloom, and some Willmottiae.

Then, within your vision, comes row after row of the beautiful Regal, some five or six rows of the Maximowiczii with its green stalks (which will add its bright orange to the scene a little later, and grow most as high as the irrigation pipes), the vivid waxy orange-scarlet blossoms of the Amabile, the light orange of the Pardalinum, which appears like a "bunch of yellow blossoms" in the distance, then more Regals—white and green and orange-scarlet and yellow and white, again! Can you see them?

Next, over between many rows of Regals, are a few rows of the gay little Tenuifolium, the yellow Columbianum again, and Amabile. (If you haven't tried Amabile, you are missing an attractive lily.) I'm sorry the camera couldn't catch these rows, but the Regals grew so tall they shaded them.

In the shorter rows, in the foreground, I planted that lovely little star lily, Concolor, and Collosum.

Now we come to a large planting of the "Sunset Lily"—the tall ones you see so plainly to the left. And here I know you would exclaim, as every one does, "Oh-o-o-o! What is THIS lily?" I have been growing and increasing this Sunset Lily for three years, and as a result, I have a nice planting of them—strong, healthy, sturdy, higher than my head, and many beautiful blossoms (see the color illustration).

I do not mean to be conceited, and I hope I have not left that impression with you, but I AM proud of my lilies—and they ARE beautiful.

New Hybrid
Hemerocallis

(Vastly improved Day Lilies)

UMBELLATUM—This is a very reliable lily, early flowering, with many umbellate upright blossoms and with a dignified, sturdy growth that makes it very welcome either in your June garden or for porch bouquets. I can offer you two varieties:

Grandiflorum—Extremely fine orange-yellow — older bulbs form beautiful clumps. Excellent with light blue Campanula.

12	25	50	100
$3.00	$5.85	$11.35	$22.00

Splendidum—Rich vermilion and orange —very strong grower and one of the most highly colored varieties of the Umbellatums.

12	25	50	100
$2.85	$5.45	$10.25	$19.15

WASHINGTONIANUM (Mt. Hood) — A dainty white bell shaped lily with many blossoms on a very graceful stem. The changing of the flowers from pink to wine color with age makes them very attractive. Mt. Hood. like many others that are so dainty and sweet, is harder to make at home in a new location than some of the more sturdy varieties, but it won a blue ribbon for a customer of mine. and helped her win sweepstakes at her garden show. She wrote me, "It was worth it." As "flowering bulbs" I am offering those I grew from seed and they had 7 to 10 blooms this year.

Flowering bulbs	12	25	50	100
.....	$3.95	$7.75	$15.20	$29.00
Large bulbs...	5.00	9.85	19.50	37.75

WILLMOTTIAE—This is the lily that just breathes of life itself, as one man expressed it, "FULL of life", and so graceful. The many orange-yellow blossoms, recurving, are borne on a graceful stem with long deep green foliage, and the little black dots are most like freckles on its bright orange-yellow face. Ht. 2 to 4 ft. July-Aug.

	12	25	50	100
5-6 in. Cir.....	$3.95	$7.75	$15.20	$29.00

PANSY SEED—OREGON GIANTS

Mrs. Ellis (the originator of "Oregon Giants") has given me permission to make you the same offer for her pansy seed as I did last year. I am glad to be able to offer these to my customers and I recommend them highly.

5 $1.00 packets, 600 seed each.....$3.00
1 1.00 packet, 600 seed, plus 1 35c packet... 1.00

BAY STATE — Brilliant and glistening deep yellow on 4-foot stems. The flowers have a delightful wavy edge which greatly adds to their beauty. A free bloomer, commencing about July 1st and continuing through August.

Each $1.25, three for $3.00

GOLDENI—The rich orange coloring with apricot undertone of this Hemerocallis is especially beautiful, and the flowers are produced in profusion. Very fine. Blooms throughout July and early August.

Each $1.50, three for $4.00

LEMONA—A pale yellow self; extra large in size, borne on very tall stems, late blooming.

Each $1.00

MANDARIN — Clear lemon yellow, recurved, increasing rapidly and very attractive.

Each $1.00

OPHIR—Dark golden yellow on very long stems, extra large flowers and of heavy texture.

Each $1.00

MISCELLANEOUS BULBS

Although I specialize in lilies, I do have a few bulbs of the Grape Hyacinths and Plumed Hyacinth that I can offer you.

MUSCARI (Grape Hyacinth)—These are deep blue and beautiful long stems. They are excellent for a low border early in the spring, or for the rock garden or for naturalizing. Please place your order as these bulbs are ready for shipment now. They begin growing early, you know. No shipment made for less than 100 unless accompanied by an order for other bulbs.

100, $3.50; 500, $16.00; 1000, $30.00

HYACINTHUS PLUMOSUS (Plumed Hyacinth)—A low growing bulb—purple plumed and a delight in a rock garden or for a low border. Ht. 6 in. Blooms May.

12, $2.00; 25, $3.65; 50, $7.10; 100, $14.00
